Alberta Coal Production

Record coal production in Alberta during 1923 is assured. The total for the year is expected to reach 7,000,000 tons in accordance with less than 6,000 last year. The payroll this year, it is anticipated, will be over $18,000,000.

Britain Buys Bacon

Exports of bacon from Canada to Great Britain increased almost 3,000,000 pounds during the first nine months of the present calendar year. For the same period of 1922 there were 70,988,000 pounds shipped to the British market as against 73,934,000 in that period of this year.

Earnings Peak Ahead

Greater progress in the future than has been attained will be made in the earnings of the Canadian National railways according to Mr. J. E. Dalrymple, vice-president in charge of traffic of the C.N.R., who stated in a recent interview that he did not believe that a net revenue of six million dollars for the eight months' period of this year could be regarded as the peak earnings. Traffic and business conditions generally are very good, Mr. Dalrymple said.

Looking Towards Canada

Large numbers of farmers, mechanics, servants, laborers and others, now resident in Northern Europe and notably Scandinavia, Finland and the Baltic States, are desirous of emigrating to Canada, according to G. Hilmer Lundbeck, general manager of the Swedish American steamship line. A Winnipeg visitor this week. Immigration restrictions in the United States are forcing these people who find they must seek better living and working conditions, to look to Canada as their future home, and a heavy movement during the coming year is anticipated. The Swedish American line has arranged to have their S. S. Stockholm make regular calls at Halifax Westbound on the Canadian National Railways.

Canadian National

Revenues

A net operating revenue of Canadian National Railways in the eight months of the present year ending August 31, according to the official figures. During the same period of 1922, operations resulted in a net deficit of $1,166,098. For the week ending October 31 gross earnings on Canadian National were $8,967,573 being an increase of $1,138,223, or 15 per cent over the corresponding week of 1922.

If we were asked the question:—"On what can I spend this $2.00 bill that will give me the greatest value in comfort and immortality requirement?" We would say: "A Hot Water Bottle!" You remember what you said at some previous time, when some member of the family took a chill or a severe pain or probably only a toothache: "If I only had a Hot Water Bottle! I'll not get caught like this again!" $2.00 buys an excellent one at the Chauvin Pharmacy.

Lloyd George Crosses Ontario

(2)—Right Hon. David Lloyd George as he appeared when speaking from the platform of the Canadian Pacific train. (3)—The engine that drew Lloyd George was the last word in mechanical construction. (4)—Mr. Lloyd George speaks to the citizens of Chapleau. (5)—With his daughter Miss Megan, J. J. Scully, General Manager of Canadian Pacific Eastern Lines, and other members of his party, Lloyd George admires the passing scenery.

Picture a little clearing at the side of the railway track in the heart of North Ontario. All about are the hilly forests of Jack-pine, hemlock and flaming yellow poplar. A brilliant autumn sun falls on lake and forest and rocky cliff and in the centre is a little patch of cleared ground surrounding a tiny log cabin. At its door a woman and three or four sturdy children are grouped. They are listening. From behind the hills again comes the exultant whistle of a locomotive, and in a few moments the train sweeps into view. It flashes past drawn by an engine of the latest type such as engineers talk of with joy, and including six plum-colored coaches, steel built from end to end. Their varnished sides reflect the warm autumn sun. Bright brass trimmings and polished windows glisten as the train sweeps along its narrow path towards the West a thing of pride and power.

The children standing beside the log cabin are silent; each holds a tiny flag that carries to the train a message of greeting, for David Lloyd George is passing by. The little Welshman of humble origin, the war-time Prime Minister of Imperial Britain is on his way from Toronto to Winnipeg and all along the railroad the people come down to see him pass.

It was a wonderful trip. Heralded by newspaper front pages and by years of power, the man who led half a world in war, moved across Ontario through scene after scene such as this which has been sketched above.

"What a country, what a wonderful country!" It was Lloyd George who spoke. Seated in the drawing room of the private car at the end of the train he gazed over the countless lakes and endless forests that flew past. About him were one or two officials of the railway that carried him on his way, and a large number of newspaper representatives for whom accommodation was provided on the train. It was the time of the morning interview, when the press men gathered to ask him questions bearing on the news of the day which had come to the train by radio from all parts of the world, but mostly from Europe, and to every question came the Lloyd George answer, quick and to the point—no evasion, even when the question was a little personal, as now and then it might be. But the questions were mostly relevant to the great issues of the day. The twenty odd newspaper people from Great Britain, United States and Canada were the pick of "the game." They and the moving picture men, the newspaper reporters of the camera, were a "star" crowd, and millions of people had from them a daily report of what Lloyd George said, did and looked like during his flying trip over the Canadian Pacific line.

The baggage car, like all the rest, was of steel. The dining car was in command of "Jimmie" Watson, the man who looked after the Prince of Wales' menu when he made his first trip across Canada. There was an all steel standard sleeper and two of the ten-compartment cars that are becoming more and more popular as they are better known. Behind them rode Lloyd George's private car. Both American and British correspondents had seen nothing better than this train. In some respects they had not seen their equal and they were loud in their praises. When they were told it was regular equipment such as runs on the "Trans-Canada" they were all amazed. Dame Lloyd George and Miss Megan were no less appreciative than was their famous husband and father. They went through the train and examined it all, and the kitchen of the dining car was of the most especial interest to the ladies. After having seen the comfort of the compartment cars, Miss Megan appropriated one of the compartments for her own use. At the conclusion of the trip Mr. Lloyd George expressed his admiration and gratitude to the Canadian Pacific Railway for the way he and his family had been taken care of while passing over the line.

As far west as Fort William, J. C. Scully, General Manager Canadian Pacific lines, accompanied the train, while D. C. Coleman, Vice-President, Western Lines, took charge from there on. The press arrangements were taken care of by J. Harry Smith, the Company's Press Representative.

Railway Loadings Increase

More grain is being delivered daily at the head of the lakes this month than during any previous month in the railways history, according to the announcements made by the Canadian National officials at Winnipeg.

Compromise On Cattle

An agreement between the Canadian and British governments, which will remove the uncertainties regarding the importation of Canadian cattle to Great Britain, and, while not giving all that Canada asked, will improve the situation considerably with regard to the classification of fat cattle among stores going to Britain.

Brings Girl Settlers

A party of 45 immigrants from the S. S. Andania, which reached Winnipeg this week over Canadian National lines, included the rearguard of 500 British girls who have emigrated to Canada this year. This party was in charge of Miss Vaughan-Jones of the Society for the Overseas Settlement of British Women, who stated that large groups of British Women would be brought to Canada next spring.

Winter In Canada

A distinct growth in the "winter in Canada" feeling is noticeable in inquiries from people residing in prairie province cities at railway ticket offices according to officials of the Canadian National Railways. The majority of the inquiries are as to special fares to Ontario and Eastern Canada. And also to the Pacific Coast, as against a distinct movement out of Canada in previous years. The warmer climate of Victoria and Vancouver is drawing many people from the prairie provinces to the Pacific coast this year.

Commence Winter Lecture

Canadian farmers, working under the auspices of the Canadian National Railways, are telling the facts about Canada to prospective British immigrants. The first of a series of lectures in Great Britain has been begun by A. T. King, an Alberta farmer.

France Imports Halibut

A new market for British Columbia halibut has been found as the result of the first visit to Prince Rupert B. C., of Dr. Le Danois, superintendent of fisheries for the French government. Experiments are to be made in the shipment of frozen halibut direct from Prince Rupert to France and it is expected that from these an important trade will result.

Feeding Correctives To Breeding Stock

(Experimental Farms Note)

The long winters on the prairies are periods during which breeding stock are kept under artificial conditions. The animals take much less exercise than during the summer and their rations no matter how they are balanced, are usually lacking in some of the elements necessary to maintain a healthy condition.

The use of potassium iodide as a corrective for breeding females has been adopted by quite a number of feeders. During the past two years the iodide has been used on the Scott Station and during the past season has been fed to brood mares, barren cows, brood sows and pregnant ewes. Only small quantities of the drug are required so that the cost of the drug is not prohibitive. The price paid during the past season was $6.50 per pound.

In 1922 it was found that while the lambs from ewes receiving the corrective showed no symptoms of goitre, 38 to 45 per cent of the lambs from other ewes were noticeably affected. Some of the lambs appeared to have the disease only to a slight extent while others were so badly affected that they were unable to nurse. In 1923 the experiment was again repeated, and again none of the lambs from the iodide-fed ewes showed any signs of goitre, while in two other cases the goitre was noticeable in 31 and 53 per cent of the lambs.

Very little trouble has been experienced with weak foals or hairless pigs on the Station. It has been given as a precautionary measure. It has been experienced in the case of some of the cows. The lambs from ewes were fed potassium iodide and also iodinated salt. A good remedy provided by a well known chemist in Canada. (Continued on page 2)

Longer evenings—more time to read—approaching winter—more sewing, knitting and reading to be done—all of which means more strain on the eyes. Don not overtax them, they are the only real pair you will ever have. You will be agreeably surprised at just what comfort a pair of glasses ground to your particular requirements will bring. ## WINTER RESORTS IN CANADA

MORE and more Canadians who spend their holidays in winter time are coming to realize that Canada offers pleasant surroundings for both winter and summer holidays. Photograph shows Parliament Building at Victoria, B.C., one of Canada's world famous garden cities, where many persons from other parts of the Dominion spend their winter holidays.

This experiment is not completed but the results to date appear most promising.

METHODS OF FEEDING

The question of how often the animals should receive the potassium iodide, and for how long a period, are two problems that have to be solved, but the plan followed at Scott was to commence to feed early in January and continue until April. The sheep were fed potassium iodide in their salt—for every 100 lbs of salt required, two pounds of potassium iodide were dissolved in a small quantity of water and this was sprinkled over the salt after the latter has been thoroughly dried so as to take up the solution readily. A small quantity of the treated salt was kept before the ewes during the months mentioned. For other animals, potassium iodide was given in the powdered form mixed with the grain ration. For the mares and cows, one half-teaspoonful of potassium iodide was given each animal twice a month. For brood sows much less than this is sufficient. J. N. J. Tinline, Superintendent Experimental Station, Scott

The Old Country For Christmas

The Canadian National Railways, as in previous years will again provide excellent through service to the seaboard for Old Country travel for this Christmas and New Year. Owing to the prospects for increased travel over last year, it has been decided to operate three through solid special trains from Winnipeg to Halifax instead of the customary one special train, in addition to through sleeping cars, all of which will be directed to the ships side at port of embarkation, as follows:

Through sleeping cars from Vancouver, Edmonton, Calgary, Saskatoon, Regina and intermediate points, consolidating and operating as special trains.

First train from Winnipeg 7.00 p.m. November 21st direct to ships side Montreal, for sailing of S.S. "Regina". November 24th to Liverpool and S.S. "Antonia" November 24th to Plymouth, Cherbourg and London.

Second train from Winnipeg 9.50 a.m., December 6th, direct to ship's side, Halifax for sailing of S. S. "Auronia", December 9th, to Liverpool, Queenstown, S. S. "Doric", December 9th, to Belfast and Liverpool and S. S. "Saturnia", December 9th, to Glasgow.

Third train from Winnipeg 9.50 a.m., December 11th, direct to ship's side, Halifax, for sailing of S. S. "Pittsburg", December 14th to Southampton, Cherbourg, Bremen; and S. S. "Caada", December 15th to Glasgow and Liverpool.

In addition to the above special through sleeping cars will be operated from Western cities direct to ship's side for the following sailings; S. S. "Regina" and S. S. "Antonia", (Montreal), November 24th; S. S. "Auronia" and S. S. "Doric" (Halifax) December 9th; S. S. "Pittsburg" (Halifax), December 14th, S. S. "Canada" (Halifax), December 15th; S. S. "Andania" (Halifax), December 16th.

There will be a big demand for these Christmas sailings and those contemplating a trip to the Old Country should book now with the local agent of the Canadian National Railway.

People from England and the Old Country generally will be interested to know that we have Boots Meloids same as you used to get at home at the same price.

Some Leading Wheats Produced At Central Experimental Farm

The most noteworthy introduction of the Dominion Experimental Farms as far as wheat is concerned, is the variety Marquis which has become world famous in a very short time. In the year 1892, numerous crosses were made of our Canadian wheats with early wheats from India and Russia, with the result that Marquis these crosses, but it was not until 1903 that a pure line of selection was obtained. From then on, Marquis has gradually gained the ascendancy over all other wheats in the east, until today about 80 per cent of the wheat grown in Canada is Marquis. It is also worthy of note that 16 per cent of the wheat grown in the United States of America is Marquis. One Other wheat has a higher percentage than Marquis and that is Turkey, a winter wheat that is grown in the majority of States. Of the spring wheats, however, Marquis is the first in popularity and leads all the spring wheats by about 8 per cent of the total wheat area of the States. In 1919 some twelve million acres of Marquis wheat were grown in the United States.

The Experimental Farms, always keeping in mind their objective of an early, high yielding wheat of good milling qualities, have been able to introduce other wheats of less commercial value but still of utmost importance for certain districts. Among these other wheats should be noted Ruby, Prelude and Huron. Ruby wheat is a wheat which ripens about eight to ten days earlier than Marquis and is, therefore suitable in districts where Marquis, in the average year, is a little too late. Ruby, however, is not as high yielding or of as good milling quality as Marquis, and should, therefore, only be grown in districts where Marquis is not a sure crop. The Prelude wheat is an extremely early wheat, suitable only for districts where the season is very short. Prelude will ripen about 14 days earlier than Marquis or four to eight days earlier than Ruby.

The above wheats are most adapted to western conditions, but it has been found that they give excellent results under eastern Canadian conditions, especially if grown in somewhat heavier soils. The cereal Division, when considering its wheat work, has always kept in mind that Huron wheat was introduced for use in Eastern Canada on the lighter soils. Huron is a bearded wheat which gives good results on the wet with in Eastern Canada.

The introduction of the above wheats has financially meant a great deal to Canada. It has been computed by various persons that Marquis of Canada some $20,000,000 per annum. Apart from the financial aspect, the fact that eighty per cent of the wheat produced in Canada is Marquis is in itself a sufficient assurance that Marquis has been of great benefit to the Dominion.

Johnnie (pointing to minister): "Who's that, ma?"

"Hush, darling! That's the gentleman that married me."

Johnnie: "Then, oif that's the gentleman that married you, what's pa doing in our house?"

Sakers secured their second shipment of toys last week and there are more coming.

LITTLE ADS DO GREAT WORK

Winter Housing Of Swine

(Experimental Farms Note)

In the prairie provinces considerable care in the housing of swine is usually necessary during the winter to prevent them from becoming stiff. This condition seldom becomes so serious that the pig cannot stand and in such cases it is seldom possible to save the animal. Perhaps the least care is required when a small number of pigs are sleeping at a straw pile. In guarding against the stiffening condition it is well to keep in mind the conditions found at the straw pile, namely a dry comfortable bed afforded by abundance of bedding, plenty of ventilation, shelter from the wind and a reasonable of exercise. If more than eight or ten pigs are together, they often pile up during cold weather, and those underneath become too warm and damp with steam, then when coming out to feed, suffer from the cold.

A great deal of money has been lost in feeding pigs for market during the winter months and the housing conditions are often responsible for the poor gains. At the Dominion Experimental Station at Scott, Sask., the well built piggery having slatted ceiling and straw loft has been compared for several years with the portable cabin for winter housing, and invariably there has been trouble from stiffening in case of those kept in the piggery, but seldom has there been any trouble among those sleeping in the cabin. Although the pigs in the cabin do not do so well as those in the piggery during the early part of the winter the difference is more than made up before spring and the lots in the cabin show better results during the total period. The plan followed with the cabin is to bank it about half way to the top with straw and manure. The cabins used a present are 6 1/2 by 8 feet with three foot walls. The floor is made of two inch planks, and there are 4 by 6 skids underneath. However, for winter use, the "A" shape cabin, having no floor, is reported by good authorities to be more satisfactory. The straw shed which is made by piling straw over a frame work of woven wire or poles is perhaps the best of all as well as the cheapest. The straw should be replenished each year. This is the method employed in housing the breeding stock at Scott. The sheds are usually approximately a hundred yards from the feed trough in order that exercise will be provided by coming to and from the shed. It is well to have the shed large enough to feed inside during the very cold weather. During such time some exercise may be afforded by scattering some sheaf oats in the shed occasionally. One sheaf to five or six pigs is sufficient at one time.

Early spring pigs are often the most profitable but when coming during February or March a heated place for farrowing is usually necessary for best results. At Scott, a small stove is used in a room large enough for three farrowing pens and the stove. When the pigs are about two days old they can stand considerable cold weather and are moved to an outside shed or cabin to make room for other litters in the warf room. On the average farm a granary could be used for a farrowing room. The temperature should only be high enough to take the chill from the air, otherwise, the change when moving outside may be too great. This plan has been followed for sometime at Scott station with good results.

Harvesting Without Twine Or Stooking

During the Alberta harvest, members and officials of the provincial government, headed by Hon. George Hoadley, Minister of Agriculture, witnessed machinery in operation which harvests without binder twine or stooking. The exhibition took place on the farm of J. H. Hauser, of Killam, the inventor. Mr. Hauser uses an ordinary push binder with a 12-foot swath, cutting to a five- or six-inch stubble and laying the grain in winrows on this stubble. An extension attachment to the machine is dropped on the second round of the field to the level of the machine table thus running the grain from the second round out 24 feet, laying it on top of the first winrow. The grain dries perfectly by lying on top of the stubble. In threshing, Mr. Hauser has been using a loader with an elevator which runs along under the winrow and lifts the grain into the loader. By a patent arrangement the grain is unloaded from the loader at the separator in neat stacks. Mr. Hauser's plan is to perfect a combination of the loader and thresher. So interested is the government in Mr. Hauser's efforts to perfect his ideas and solve to a great extent the problem of harvest labor, that it is considering steps to assist him, and to procure the full benefit of his operations for the farms of Alberta.

Forget It

Forget the slander you have heard.
Forget the hasty, unkind word:
Forget the quarrel and the cause,
Forget the whole affair, because
Forgetting is the only way.
Forget the storm of yesterday,
Forget the chap whose sour face
Forgets to smile in any place:
Forget the trials you have had,
Forget the weather if it's bad.
Forget the nagger, hes a freak,
Forget him seven days a week.
Forget you're not a millionaire,
Forget the grey streaks in your hair.
Forget the home team lost the game
Forget the man who was to blame;
Forget the breakfast when its cold,
Forget to kick, forget to scold.
Forget the butchers awful charge,
Forget the grocers bill is large.
Forget wherever you may ram,
Forget the chap who wrote this
"pome." ?

Rene Page Gored By Bull: Saved By Dog And Bravery of Daughters

Felix Page was attacked by his Shorthorn bull last Friday, and received a number of severe bruises on shoulder, arms and legs. Page was in the act of feeding him when the bull turned against him and knocked him down. Luckily, his dog came to his defense, whilst his daughters hearing the melee rushed to his assistance. The bull was still enraged and acting badly, and only the bravery of the girls and tenacity of the dog saved Page from death.

Felix Page is making good progress to recovery, we are glad to add.

OUR SHORT STORY

The Very Mysterious Spot In The Sun

On the South Carolina coast stands one of those imposing colonial edifices for which that state is famous. It was built during the times when the southern settlers, requiring laborers to work on their tobacco plantations, were importing large cargoes of African negroes, who were held as slaves. It is of brick, with large pillars in front, and, considering its age, is in a remarkable state of preservation. This is because a recent owner has put it in repair.

Like other houses of its kind dating back to the seventeenth century, it was built out of the proceeds of negroes captured in Africa and sold as slaves in America. But the slaves trade and its twin brother, piracy, were not in that day deprecated as they are, or rather, would be today. He who built the house referred to became one of the most prominent men of his time. Richard Granville was not his name but in bringing out the antecedents of his descendants is a far safer name to use than his own. He began life as a sailor, visiting every country where there was trading to be done, and a few of his older slaves, who were house servants and thus enabled the more readily to become conversant with his servants, handed down a tradition that their master started his fortune in piracy.

Be this as it may, up to the middle of the last century his descendants did not deny that much of his money had been made in the slave trade. In his old age his conscience troubled him, and those who were nearest him said that he desired to make some reparation for his misdeeds. He had a statue of himself made of bronze and set it up on a pedestal in a bay window of his library. The left hand rests on an anchor, and the right hold a sextant not a mock sextant a real one, though not of brass, but of the same material as the statue. He left orders that no headstone should mark his grave, and it was supposed that he intended the statue as a substitute for one. At any rate, no one now knows where he is buried.

Different generations of his descendants discussed the statue and wondered at the whim which led their progenitor to erect it. One thing about it excited special attention. Every morning the sun, shining in upon it, strikes the eyepiece of the sextant and, passing through the tube, casts a solar image on the opposite wall. The track of this round spot of light changes with the season, traversing a slightly different path each day. There is another thing that puzzled the owners of the Granville estate. The only inscription on the statue, or, rather its pedestal, is the date of Richard Granville's birth. And not only is the date given, but the hour and minute.

Of all topics connected with the statue probably the given of this minute information was most discussed. No one who saw it could remember having seen any memorial giving either the hour and minute of a birth or the hour and minute of a death. But one generation after another passed away and no plausible reason for either the statue or its singular inscription was suggested.

During the civil war Elwood Granville, the owner of the estate at that time, fought for the maintenance of the system in the introduction of which his progenitor took so important a part. Colonel Granville was a religious man and one of those who traced authority for slavery from the Bible. After the war he returned to his plantation and began to run it anew under the system that had been born during the struggle.

A few papers that had belonged to the original Granville were handed down through his descendants. They had been preserved time and again by different persons, but appeared to contain nothing to throw any light on the puzzles connected with the writer or receiver. One day Colonel Granville while amusing himself with these documents, read a letter from the founder of his house to a clerkman, in which the former said that he would like to leave at his death a fund for the benefit of the negro race in America, but the time would not come for perhaps one or two centuries when such a bequest could be utilized.

Probably the statement had been read a hundred times by Richard Granville's descendants without making any marked impression. But Colonel Granville read it when the negro slave had been just emancipated and called, in all the ignorance induced by his condition, to citizenship. The meaning of the statement, "The time would not come for perhaps one or two centuries," was plain to him. More than one century had passed and brought the changed conditions. This led Colonel Granville, who was eager to help the negro, now that he had become a freeman, onward and upward to think of the benefits that would accrue from such a bequest as was mentioned in the letter.

Then suddenly two connected ideas entered Colonel Granville's brain. The first was: Might not the writer have secretly carried out his intention, leaving a fund for the purpose that would turn up a century or two after his death? And might not the statue have something to do with its location?

Though he did not know it, he had made a mental leap bridging a century since his ancestor's death. He determined to make a study of the statue and everything that pertained to it. Every morning he devoted an hour to sitting before the bronze, looking at it and thinking about it. Perhaps he fancied that by thus mentally dwelling upon it through some spiritual process the secret would be imparted to him. The inscription engaged his attention but he could make nothing of it. And yet there must have been an object in putting it there alone, and especially with the hour and minute of birth.

One morning Colonel Granville was sitting, as usual, studying the statue. The sun spot was crawling slowly over the wall as it had been traveling year in and year out for 100 years. The colonel was watching it as he had often watched it before. A third new idea came to him. Might not this sun spot have some meaning?

There seem to be two kinds of ideas in the human brain, those that are original or parent ideas and those that are offspring. The present case is an illustration. The conception that the sun spot might have some meaning was in a measure original (thought everything, after all, is but a link in an eternal chain), and it suggested another idea—viz. Might not there be a connection between the sun spot and the date of birth on the statue?

Colonel Granville sprang from his chair. He was confident that he had made an important discovery. What that discovery would lead to was another matter. He had little expectation that it would work out his first conceptions which had come from the letter he had read, but he hoped it might solve the mystery of the statue and the date inscribed upon it. He was not long in inferring that on the day, hour and minute recorded on the statue the sun spot would rest on a part of the wall which would give some information or injunction intended by the man who had erected the statue.

The inscription gave the year, which could be of no importance since the sun traverses the same apparent path annually; the day, June 17; the hour, 10 o'clock, and the minute, the twenty-fifth. In order words, if this were the true explanation, on June 17, at twenty-five minutes after 10 o'clock, the position of the sun spot would mean something. It could not refer to 10 oclock at night for an obvious reason.

The Very Mysterious Spot In The Sun

It was early in April when Colonel Granville hit upon this possible explanation. Nearly two months of waiting would be necessary before the spot would reach a position corresponding with the date. The colonel, too impatient to defer investigation for what seemed to him so long a period, was eager to get a computer to come and calculate where the spot would be on the given day. But he knew of no one at hand who would be able to make the calculation. Besides, he had no desire to suffer the obloquy such an act would cast upon him, for when he stopped to think he was forced to admit that no more chemericall idea could enter the brain of man.

So he was obliged to wait and while waiting planning an excuse for what he proposed to do. He determined to make a hole in the wall where the sun spot rested on the 17th of June at twenty-five minutes past 10 in the morning, and he proposed to tell the household that he was looking for a convenient location for a chimney he was thinking of building. Every day after that the colonel watched the movement of the spot with keen interest, and at the end of the month he could calculate pretty nearly where it would fall on the 17th of June. However, he waited till the date came round.

Now, on the 17th of June the sun stands very high, practically at the highest point during the year. Consequently the spot was at the lowest point. In fact, it rested on the floor. The colonel bored a hole in the flooring, inclining it from the sextant to the point of the spot's contract, and inserting a tube, noted a place in the cellar where the line of vision prolonged would strike. Then one night when the household was asleep he went into the cellar with a lantern, a pick and a spade and began to dig.

He had cut through the cement bottom of the cellar and dug down exactly ten feet when he struck masonry. It was not very well put together, and he soon loosened the upper stones, coming to an open space. In this was an iron box or safe, such as was used many years ago. A blow of the pick knocked off the cover, and there lay a mass of gold coins. On the coins lay a paper, which Colonel Granville read.

His idea derived from the letter written by his ancestor was correct. Here was a chest containing a mixture of English, Spanish and other gold pieces with a will bequeathing the treasure to found an institution for the amelioration of the negro race.

Colonel Granville replaced the earth over the treasure and left it to think out the problem before him. Such a bequest coming from the original testator would be absorbed in legal technicalities. Besides, Granville would not like the notoriety attached to bringing out so many old coins—coins that he knew came from the price of slaves and probably the loot of piracy. He resolved to say nothing about this strange request, but to dispose of it piecemeal and erect in his own name the institution for which it was intended. This intention he carried out, and many a negro is now being educated with the money derived from the sale of his ancestors.

Crate Fattening Of Chickens

The question of disposing of the surplus cockerels is becoming a more important one each year on the farm. It is only a question of a short time now until the poultry will be marketed on a grade basis in much the same way as other live stock. And why not? Producers of a high-class product suffer loss each year on account of the fact that the market does not discriminate between good and poor quality in poultry.

This brings us to the question of finishing the birds in order that they may go on the market in a first-class condition. There are two main methods open: pen feeding and crate fattening. Of the two there is little question but that the later is the better method and we will devote our remarks to it particularly.

The birds are confined to slated crates about six feet long, eighteen inches wide and eighteen inches high. They are usually divided into three compartments, each one holding three or four birds. This latter will depend on the size of the birds. The size of the whole crate may be modified to suit conditions. The fattening should be done in as warm a place as is available. For convenience in cleaning it is well to have the crates raised from the ground about three feet.

Before placing the birds in the crates each individual bird should be thoroughly dusted with a good louse powder. It might be well to state at this point that it is only profitable to feed cockerels which are healthy.

The question of feed is an important one. However it is not necessary to buy expensive prepared feeds. The grains which are grown on the farm will be found very satisfactory. One of the best oats, ground very fine. Some ground wheat or barley might also be added with good results. The ground grain should be mixed to a fairly thin paste with milk or buttermilk. If these are not available water could be used but the results will not be so good. The rate of gain and the quality of fleshing will be affected.

Feeding should be done twice a day at regular times. For the amount of feed a good rule to follow is this. Place the feed in the trough and allow the birds to eat for twenty minutes. At the end of this time remove the trough. Overfeeding is dangerous and results in loss of appetite and consequent loss of weight. It will not be necessary to water the birds if the feed is right.

The period of feeding will be from sixteen to twenty days, depending largely on the birds themselves.

The cockerels should be starved for a day before killing. Sticking through the mouth and dry plucking is the approved method of handling before marketing.

A man who discovered that he was standing on a woman's train had the presence of mind to remark:—

"Though I may nit have the power to draw an angel from the skies, I have pinned one to the earth."

She excused him

The arrival of twins at a flat one evening caused a great sensation, and the sister of the young mother was so impressed by the unexpected honor of being aunt to a pair that she lost her wits for the time being.

She rushed to the nearest post-office and asked for stamps so that she might spread the glad tidings.

The clerk said affably, "How many, miss?"

"Two," she cried joyously.

"What?"

A boy and a girl, she said, then fled in dismay.

STUDEBAKER LIGHT-SIX

Studebaker's vast resources are utilized to manufacture (not assemble) the Light-Six complete in the newest and most modern large automobile plants in the world.

Resources, consisting of $90,000,000 of actual net assets, together with $45,000,00 of plants, make it possible for Studebaker to offer you a six-cylinder car, at less than $1500, that is emphatically superior in design, construction and performance to any car within hundreds of dollars of its price.

By complete manufacture, Studebaker not only guards the quality of each part, but saves the middleman's profits, with the result that no other make of car ever built, by anyone, at any price, represents so great a dollar-for-dollar value as the Light-Six.

Evidence of its mechanical superiority is found in its practical freedom from vibration. This is accomplished by the perfect engine balance secured through machining the Light-Six crankshaft and connecting rods on all surfaces. This requires 61 precision operations. No other car in Canada selling for less than $3,500 follows this practise.

It is significant, therefore, that the sale of $1,880 Studebaker cars during the first six months of this year broke all records. Buyers are justified in expecting more for their money in a Studebaker than in any other car.

Sound Reasoning

Village doctor (to elder who is paying a call) "But surely, Saunders, you will have a drop of something before you go?"

Saunders: "No, thank ye, doctor. I've three gude reasons for refusing your hospitality. First I'm the chairman of the local temperance society; second, I'm just gaein' tae a kirk meeting and third I've just had one."

Everything was wrong in the elocution class. The teacher was discouraged and he urged his pupils to put more expression into their recitations.

"Too flat," he exclaimed. "Too colorless! You can do better than that. Try again. Now! Open your mouth and throw yourself into it!"

A Family Ticket Saves Big Money

A family ticket costs $1.25 and will admit father and mother and all the children under 16 years of age to the picture show at Chauvin and Edgerton. This is a new plan and should be of considerable benefit to those who have large healthy families of growing children. The program for next week includes the following interesting items in a nine-reel program: "The Young Rajah"—a Paramount picture, in which Rodolph Valentino appears at his best as a young Indian prince, brought up in America in ignorance of his origin. You will follow him through the strangest tale of love and adventure that was ever written. Cast includes Wanda Hawley and Charles Ogle.

And you must not miss the comedy Showing at Chauvin, Monday, November 26th: and at Edgerton the next day (Tuesday)

1923 Coal Products

The Chief Inspector of Mines recently announced that Alberta's coal production for 1923 had increased 1,500,000 tons over 1922. There have been increased shipments from Alberta to Manitoba, Ontario, British Columbia, Saskatchewan, and the United States. The big movement in the West is reflected in the increased amount of railway steam coal used in 1923.

GOOD CAUSE FOR THANKS

An old deacon, having occasion to spend a night at an hotel, was assigned a room containing three single beds, two of which already had occupants. Soon after the light was extinguished, one of those began to snore so loudly as to prevent the deacon from getting to sleep. The tumult increased as the night wore away until it became absolutely fearful. Some two or three hours after midnight the snorer turned himself in bed, gave a hideous groan, and became silent. The deacon supposed the third gentleman asleep, but at this juncture he heard him exclaim: "He's dead, Thank God. He's dead!"

HELPFUL SERMON

A bishop of the Methodist Church relates the following experience: After the service one Sunday morning he was approached by an old lady who expressed great appreciation of his discourse. "Why, bishop," she said, "you can never know what your sermon meant to me. It was just like water to a drowning man."

Chauvin Curling Rink

M Parcels is busy getting the Chauvin rink into shape for the season. Much of the preliminary work is already accomplished and it is expected that the curling rink will be ready next week. The skating rink will be flooded at an early date.

Artland Sewing Club

Arrangements are now complete for the Scotch concert and dance, which is being held in Artland school, under the auspices of the St. Andrews Day the evening of St. Andrew's Day, November 30th. Concert will start at eight o'clock, and lunch will be served right after before dancing begins. As this is the first celebration of St. Andrews Day held in this district, it is trusted there will be a large turnout of Scotsmen and their friends. The admission for gentlemen is 75c., Ladies please bring baskets.

Ladies coming without baskets will be charged full admission.

The community turkey killing now is conducted every season just before Christmas by the marketing service will start shortly. Community kills have been arranged this season at 18 different points.

A Business Deal

An Aberdonian and a Yorkshireman met at a horse fair and adjourned to a near-by tavern. After several drinks the Aberdonian suggested that they should exchange ponies.

The Yorkshireman demurred, but after more liquid refreshment decided to trade.

"You know, Bill," said the man from Aberdeen, when the transaction was completed, "I think I've got the best of the bargain."

How's that?" asked his friend. Well, my ponies died. "Is that so?" said the Yorkshireman. "Well, so's mine, and I've taken its shoes off."

BARBAROUS

For true barbarism you will have to go far to get one better than the paper-hanger's answer to the minister when asked on what day he could paper the manse.

"Well, sir," he said, "you see I'm rather busy now. I hung Mrs. Smith, yesterday: I'm hanging one of your elders to-day; but if it is convenient, I'll drop round and hang you on Wednesday."

Scientific Young man: I tell you that the time is coming when you will be able to carry all the fertilizer necessary for an acre of ground in one waistcoat pocket."

Old Farmer: "And all the crop in the other."
